The Longmont Press says that, cuting the cold weather, a large number of the catele in the valley were driven to the mount ins. "In heavy snows, stock does much better in the fost hills than in the valley, as they can browse from limbs of trees and bushes, and t is only a few days, at most, that the snow less on the south and west side of the Mile, and then the shelter afforded them from the cold winds, is a help that cannot be bac in the valler.

The Denver Mirror is responsible for this: There has been organized in our midst a joint stock association, or mutual pencht society, having for its capital stock ten equal seases of $100 each. The shares are owned by ten of Denver's "best young men," whose games we won't give now. ' he object of the society is to have one of its members was, win, and marry a young lady, whose fortune in her own right is precisely $10,00%. "Each member to have three weeks' total in making love-not meeting with success in that time, to give way to the next. The fortunite out who succeeds to declare a dividend of 100 per cent, on the remaining shares. Fact!

When little cold has been experienced in the Winter, and vegetation had been scarcely checked, the sheep "relds an alundant cross of wood, but the fleece sperceptable coarser as well as heavier. When the first has been severe and the ground long covered with snow, if the tlock has been fairly applied with folder, although the fleece may have lost a little in weight. it will have acquired a superior degree of fineness, and a proportional increase of value. Should, however? the sheep have been neglectel and starvel during this prolongation of cold writher, the fleece as well as the caredse is thirmer, and although it may have preserved its smallness of filament, it has lost its weight, Strength, and asefulness

This, in connection with the discrepance in his stones and other suspicious, circum stances, led to bis arrest. He then offered to go with a party to where his companions had ser ished are verily the truth of his statements. He confessed to having killed one of his comrades, but said it was in self-defence, as they were starving, an attempt was made by the other man to kill him, and that he had beer too quick for him, and killed him and subsisted everal days on his flesh. He wandered with the party several days over the mountains, an til they became thoroughly convinced that he had no intention of reading them to the remains of the dead men, and they brought him lack to Signache. During the entire trin he acted in a manner calculated to strengthen their suspictors, and the prisoner was turned over to the sherelf of this county, but one night he escaped from his guard and fled the country. Since that time all attem its to recapture him have failed, and he is be ieved to be now in Arizona. Soon after Packer's escape, some prospectors found the five missing men at tother, at a point about three miles below the Lake on the Lake Fork of Gunnison, River. Four of them were lying side by side, while the fifth was a few hundred feet off, and it is supposed he was endeavoring to escape when he was pursued and shot. All of these men had been murdered by the human fiend whom they had trusted as a companion, and that for a few hundreds of dollars. It was a proud day for the old man who has played such a conspicuous part in the work of Italian unmeation; and it could not have been without a thrill of emotion that he remembered how, on the march to Caeta, in 1800, he met and sainted as "King of Italy" that Victor Emittys. t fit who now teigns at Aome.

A writer from Berlin thus describes a German military how. "Imagine an oak plank, see feet in height, with a hinge in the middle, draw itself ! up to a perpendicular, and, with a quick movement, snyr the large so that the upper part sud denly springs forward and back again, and you will have some idea of the pracetalness of the exrented movement, and of the shock one gets when bring introduced to a German military 'swell.'

A justice of the peace living in another county, was recently called upon by a couple from Barton, Vermont, who desired to be infarried, but two weeks after the ceremony, remembered that the marriage was diegal, as being made out of the county where the couple belonged, so he married them again. Some time after, he recol-lected that he had not been qualified for office in their county, and, taking the oath, he again performed the ceremony.

The California hop vine has the singular habit of only growing in the winter. The colder the weather is the better it thrives, and on clear, firsty nights it sometimes grows an inch in five hours. It bears beautiful, snow white flowers, something the tuberoses, only much more fragile and fragrant. Ladies wear them with di-amonds at evening parties. They wither in daylight, and open only at night. cury is lowest, and the stars are almost reflected on the crisp, shining snow, then this delicate flower opens its petals and fills the frosty air with as perfume.

One night recently, the gas suddenly went out in Marseilles and left the whole city in darkness. that moment a gymnast was per brunng on the flying trabece in the theatre. He was even in the air at that very instant, making his leap from one trapeze to eatch the other. The caught the other successfully, but in such a nervous con dition that he remained in a convolute or cata teptic state. He could not relax his grasp to change his position; his muscles, held rigidly as steel, his w tole body was fixed awinging lice a stone. He was taken down in that condition and recovered next day.

A correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean writes thus of a widow of an ex-President : "Un one of the cosy, shady streets of Nashville, the loston of the South, in an old-fas noned mansion of red brick, with wide, deep windows, and a mammoth-pillared piazza, jutting out ske the hold forehead of the famous man that once lived there, is the house of Mrs. James Knox widow of the tenth President of the United States -one of the Mothers of the Nation. A slender, graceful old lady, with a snow-white handkerchief and folds of curls that lie hat on each side of her brow. She is seventy-six years old, but her eye is as straight, her step as quick, and her ever as bright as the eyes of a girl; , active in every benevolent scheme, generous lo an extreme, besitable according to the tracitions of Kentucky hos mality, and as courtly as a queen.

The English Government has an e-ephant on its hands in the iron clad Devastation. She was designed as 'ar back as the early part of 1849, and the has not yet been trusted in really rough ocean waters. There was a to k or sending her to Vigo this Autumn to see now At antic waves agree with her, but the visit is postponed, for it has been discovered that all openings to be ov, except rome the increase deck, would have o were stricken cown almost in sight of test auc be closed for four or five clays, and towards the end of that time the atmosphere between the decks would become a "poisoned air-bal's." When this has been put right, the Admiralty w'll consider whether she can safely be sent into the open sea; but not much hope is entertained of ter ever being ht for that.
